

Bookie's Week in Review

July 24-31, 2011

Sic transit gloria (meaning glory is fleeting or don't get too uppity
Sunny – it ain't gonna last!)

^ That's our theme this week as the Number One spot moves quickly among three different players!

Sunny has an outstanding week and captures the top prize, only to be Marshded off to ignominy by the KaDaverous one. But within 24 hours, Chilly appears to have recovered faster than Tiger Woods from his leg ailment and makes dead wood out of KaDaver at the 'Prior.

And where is Chef in all this? Seems to have disappeared. Actually no – he was concentrating on the Citizen amateur golf tournament where he made a good showing. Congratulations, Chef!

Meanwhile, among the B, C, and D-classes – where the rest of us hang out – there was plenty of action and a host of upsets.

At the Marshes, there were more upsets than defences. It just shows you that in match-play, anything can happen. So for all of you high-scorers out there, jettison your fears and take on one of the big guys. You never know! Pommie Number One? Why not?

Garnering first-star accolades this week, apart from Chilly and Ticklar, were carcarcar (where DO these nicknames come from? Editor's note: TripleCar?), Popeye, Gaziff and Hacker. Congrats to one and all.

There were no three-dog nights; but there were two-dog days achieved by Steamer, Ticklar and Smitty.

And special mention has to be made of Crenshaw who had three two-dog days! Nice going (must be some kind of record); but how about saving some for the rest of us!

We have to recognize one of our most enthusiastic rookies: Charlie, the only guy I've seen break into dance when his putt just gets close! This week he not only grabbed three wins and scored a birdie, he also broke triple digits for the first time in his Slammer career. Well done, Baryshnikov!

Burnsy bags another eagle, equaling Malone's record of four in a season. And the season is barely half over.

Thanks to IronMaiden, Cuba and Grumpy for handling these summaries in the last few weeks. If anyone else is interested in trying their hand at this job (Chilly? KidsClub?), let Stevie Ray, Rulz or Malone know. I'd be more than happy to see someone else try their hand at it.

B-Class Top 10 Rankings

1	Steamer	6	Popeye
2	Sunny	7	Ozone
3	springlakes	8	Hacker
4	Happy	9	SunnyBoy
5	DJD45	10	RB

Bookie (#75), bookie@slammertour.com

slammertour.com